

‘with the garden in mind....’

A photograph of a garden scene. In the center, a light-colored wooden bench with a curved back and slatted seat is positioned against a red brick wall. To the left of the bench, there are various green plants and purple flowers. To the right, a brick path leads away from the bench. The background is a red brick wall. The overall scene is a well-maintained garden.

The garden you imagine...

...when you close your eyes can bear little or no resemblance to that outside your window but you know that creating such a place is beyond your own capability and you just don't know where to start.

A good idea is to enlist the help of an experienced garden designer, who will expertly combine their vision with your own ideas, to formulate a design that suits both your lifestyle and budget.

How do designers work?

The process begins with a consultation...

During this informal meeting, the designer will encourage you to express and discuss any ideas you may have for your garden and the completion of a simple questionnaire will allow you to explore options you may not have even deemed possible.

The designer will view the garden and after careful consideration of your requirements prepare a quotation for your plan.

Once you have considered your options and you decide to proceed with the design, you will be asked to pay a deposit, relative to the cost of the final design.

The designer will then arrange to carry out a survey of your garden; detailing all aspects of the site, from its size to the nature of the soil.

Finally a design will be created, containing all the relevant information and advice that you will need to transform the space into the garden of your dreams.

Which plan will I need?

There are various types of plan available to suit your requirements...

Layout Plan

This is a detailed plan of all the main design features in your garden, including seating areas, pathways, water features, lawn and borders. General guidelines for planting are given but finer plant detail is left to the clients discretion. Concept sketches will be presented for your approval prior to the designer undertaking the final plan and you will be provided with an estimate for the construction project at this stage.

Layout Plans for Smaller Features

These are ideal if you are looking to create a new feature within an existing garden, without encompassing the whole site, for example: an extended seating area, or perhaps a water feature.

Planting Plan

A comprehensive plan giving full detail of all the chosen plants and their position within your existing, or re-shaped borders.
